Tourists in Berlin on Way Home Stir Life of Capital

Bustle Attendant on Last Minute Preparations for Departure Keeps Hotels Busy—Many American Business Men and Artists Are Now There.

Special Correspondence to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

ALTHOUGH the tourist tide in Germany has turned homeward, hotels are still filled with those who are making their last stop in the capital before sailing. Never have such busy days been seen, for the hustle and bustle of departure is always greater than that of arrival. There are the precious souvenirs to be collected, scores of things packed into trunk space which was already full upon arrival. Hence the auring crowds, perspiring porters and galloping bellboys in the Berlin hotels.

Many of those who are still abroad are business men or figures in the musical or theatrical world. Among the latter is Richard Hagemann, formerly assistant musical director of the Metropolitan Opera, who goes to Chicago next season to share with Signor Polacco the leadership of the Chicago Opera Company. Mr. and Mrs. Hagemann have arrived recently from Munich preparing to leave about October 1 for America. Other well-known musicians who have visited Berlin recently are Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and Mrs. Gabrilowitsch, daughter of the late Mark Twain. She is now giving song recitals in various German cities.

John King of Suffolk, Va., who accompanied her husband to Berlin on business, will not be able to leave for some time because of a broken thigh sustained when she was struck by a motorcycle in the Berlin streets. Mr. King, who was a member of a delegation representing the Southern Commercial Congress, has remained in Berlin while other members are returning home. Included in the party were Dr. Clarence J. Owen, Washington; Emmet W. Gans of Hagerstown, Md.; Ralph Metcalf of Tacoma, Wash.; N. B. King of Philadelphia, and Cesare Longobardi.

Prof. C. H. Williams of the faculty of the University of Missouri is making Berlin his headquarters while investigating conditions in Germany as the official representative of the National Educational Association.

Miss Abbie L. Lee, a well-known American golf player, and Miss Mary B. Carrill of Philadelphia, were recent visitors to Berlin. The American business world is represented in Berlin at present by a number of well-known firms. Among them are Mr. Julian W. Potter, vice-president of the Italian Discount and Trust Company of New York and an important figure in the oil industry of the United States; Mr. Stanton Griggs, representing Hempill, Noyes & Co. of 37 Wall street, who was here with Mrs. Griggs; Mr. Frank K. Houston, senior vice-president of the Chemical National Bank of New York; Mr. Lee Douglas of Nashville, former District Attorney of the Middle district of Tennessee and special assistant to the department of Justice; Leslie Cole, R. Embury, representing the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in London, who was
